

Phoenix Interact Labs

Phoenix Interact Labs is a new programme designed to encourage people to be creative with digital technology.

Leicester Hackspace

Tue 3 & 17 Dec, 6pm - 9pm
Free

Leicester Hackspace is for people who like to experiment with technology to create brand new things. With a range of tools and resources on hand, you get the chance to discuss your own projects and share expertise with likeminded people.

Digital Makers Group

Sat 14 Dec, 12pm - 4pm
Free

A group for anyone interested in learning how to use digital technologies like computer programming, 3D printing, Raspberry Pi and Arduino to be creative and make new things. Anyone is welcome to join and meetings are open to people of all ages and levels of ability.

Find out more about both groups at interactlabs.co.uk

Layla Curtis – Artist Talk

Tue 10 Dec, 6.30pm
Free

Layla Curtis will discuss her exhibition Antipodes with Phoenix associate artist Sean Clark, whose company Cuttlefish helped build the online artwork on which the exhibition is based.

This talk is free but places are limited. Please book with box office on 0116 242 2800.

Antipodes continues in the Cube gallery and cafebar at Phoenix until Sat 21 Dec.

Featuring an installation of live webcam feeds and the online artwork alongside time lapse videos, drawings and photographic works, Antipodes highlights the distance and differences between us, whilst reminding us how technology is bringing us closer together.
