River Studies

(Ganges/Brahmaputra)

Michael Aschauer
Cube Gallery at Phoenix
 Until Fri 8 Aug
 Free entry

Rivers have a long and complex relationship with human society, carving pathways that accumulate history and identity.

In River Studies, artist Michael Aschauer explores how rivers affect people and cultures. His exhibition blends photography, data visualisation and cartography and also includes an online artwork: play.riverstudies.org

Phoenix Interact Labs

Open Labs

Sat 19 Jul, drop in between 1pm and 5pm, Free

Come along and see the sort of work currently taking place at Phoenix Interact Labs. We'll be demonstrating the 3D printer, the WaterColorBot, the Raspberry Pi-controlled robot arm and other recent projects. Feel free to bring your own projects to share.

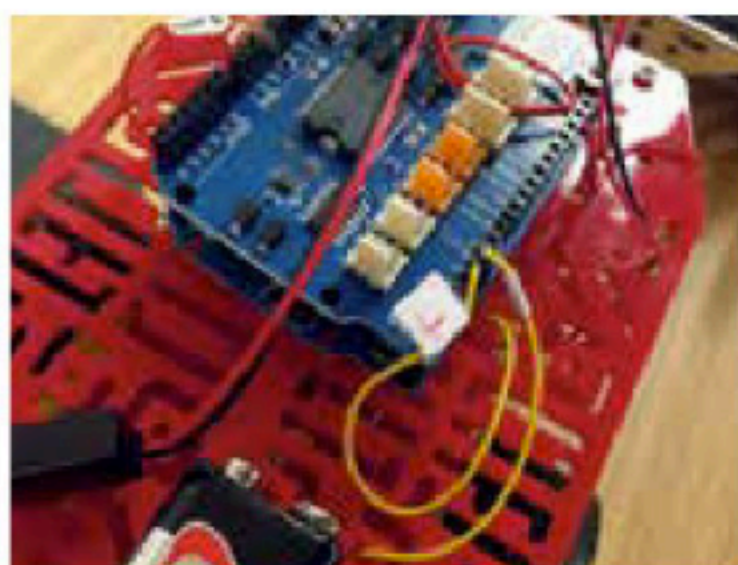

Getting Started with Arduino workshop

Sat 2 Aug, 1pm – 5pm, £45

Following the sell-out of our previous two sessions, we'll be running another Arduino workshop. Suitable for novices, or those wanting to freshen up their skills; places include a complete Arduino kit to take away.

Visit interactlabs.co.uk to see our full workshop programme for the coming months.

Artists' Bursaries

Phoenix is announcing a programme of support to help artists in Leicester and Leicestershire be creative with digital technology.

If you're an artist, designer or technologist interested in experimenting with technology in your practice, Phoenix is offering bursaries of up to £500, workspace and individual programmes of support to help you create innovative new work.

Selected artists will have the freedom to develop their projects in the Phoenix Interact Labs space, and work with us to consider new ways of engaging the public beyond the traditional exhibition format.

For more information visit the Phoenix website or contact gino.attwood@phoenix.org.uk

The Artists' Bursaries are supported by local technology company Cuttlefish Multimedia. For more information visit the Phoenix website or contact gino.attwood@phoenix.org.uk
