

Exhibitions

River Studies (Ganges/ Brahmaputra)

Michael Aschauer

Cube gallery at Phoenix

Wed 25 Jun – Fri 8 Aug

Free

River Studies is an ongoing project that explores how rivers affect people and cultures. Blending photography, data visualisation and cartography, the exhibition will feature a fascinating array of films and prints, alongside an interactive online artwork:

play.riverstudies.org.

Rivers have a long and complex relationship with human society, carving pathways that accumulate history and identity. How much of it is reflected by their appearance? Some differences are inevitable: urban and rural areas, changes in vegetation. But there are also more gradual and subtle differences to discover and explore.

Map of Indian Rivers

The geography and rivers of India are also explored on the walls of the café bar in an art piece which blends hand painting with projection.

Band Baja Jukebox!

LCB Depot, Rutland Street

Mon 23 – Sun 29 Sun

Discover the pop music of India in this glorious retro jukebox – an installation created by An Indian Summer and Phoenix Interact Labs.

Digital Heritage Workshop

Sat 14 Jun, 1.30 – 6pm

What would people in 2034 think of our lives from the stories, photos and videos we create today?

Phoenix is working with the University of Leicester on a digital heritage project focusing on Leicester's Cultural Quarter, which considers the role 'crowdsourcing' and social media can play in forming our social history.

You can get involved by taking part in this workshop – please contact:

gino.attwood@phoenix.org.uk

